'Road to no where' threatens historic church

Five-lane, 1.1 mile project's cost is $16 million; part of regional TSPLOST vote on July 31st

For 106 years, Woods Grove Baptist Church has served the Towns County community.

Generations upon generations have attended the "the little White Church on the Lake."

The historic church, located at 2224 North Highway 17, is facing its biggest challenge to date: a proposed 1.1 mile, five-lane highway connected to the regional projects approved by the Regional Roundtable for the Transportation Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax.

The news of the potential fate of Woods Grove Baptist Church was brought to light during a meeting organized by the Towns County Chamber of Commerce.

Doug Callaway, executive director of the Georgia Transportation Alliance, an affiliate of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, spoke to a crowd at Brothers Restaurant at Willow Ranch last week. The "Eggs and Issues" breakfast was all about educating locals about the merits of the TSPLOST.

According to the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, the Alliance's mission is to help make sure that Georgia has the infrastructure necessary to attract and retain jobs and grow the economy. Transportation is one of the biggest issues on the table.

"This (TSPLOST) is the best option on the table," Callaway said. "Is it perfect? No. Is it the best thing going? Absolutely."

New bridge for Brasstown Creek

$3.6 million project one of five new bridges scheduled for Towns County

Towns County Sole Commissioner Bill Kendall said its about time that the 72-year-old bridge over Brasstown Creek on Georgia 66 was going to be replaced.

On Tuesday, Georgia Department of Transportation officials met with local residents and officials at the Blue Ridge Mountain EMC office to discuss the particulars of replacing the antiquated bridge.

The schedule for the project is to begin right of way acquisition in Fiscal 2014. There are 19 parcels needed to complete the project. The estimated right of way acquisition costs are $600,000. Construction is scheduled to begin Fiscal 2015 at an estimated cost of $3.6 million.

The project is only .76 miles long, however, GDOT also is straightening out the road as it approaches the bridge, easing the curve as it approaches the bridge.

The bridge also will be raised about nine feet higher than the existing bridge to prevent future flooding situations.

The new bridge will be built about 100 feet north of the existing bridge so the existing bridge will stay open throughout construction with no disruption to traffic with the exception of a few "rubbernecker" slowing to watch the work.

Leo Hesson: 'Do not disturb'

TSPLOST would displace Laurel Hills Memory Gardens

By Charles Duncan

Laurel Hills Memory Gardens is a special place to Leo Hesson.

His beloved wife is buried there. He's purchased plots to see that other family members are buried there in the cemetery's hallowed grounds.

The proposed 1-cent Transportation Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax that voters in regions throughout the state will decide on July 31st weighs heavy on his heart.

If approved by voters in the Mountains Region, TSPLOST would include projects that would damage part of Laurel Hills Memory Gardens via a 1.1 mile, $16 million road expansion to five lanes to the North Carolina line.

"We the citizens of Towns County do not believe this specific project is in our best interests," Hesson told those attending last week's TSPLOST in-
