quality of water resources, but will also focus on water and wastewater facilities in the state. Riley was nominated to the council by the Georgia Forestry Commission and said he will be protecting the forests, which act as a natural filter for waterways after rainfall runoff. "It is important we maintain our forest coverage," he said.

Stars...from page 1

Relay for Life for about 15 years.

Thomason lost her husband to lung cancer in 2005, so she knows how important the annual event is. "It makes me want to help more," said Thomason. "Hopefully we will save somebody else's life with the work we do.'

Jim Hicks said he and detainees have built four adequate dog pens, which only cost the county $480 for materials. Maintenance of any kept animals

would be done by the employ-

to implement the ordinance,

there were a number of questions from citizens about its effectiveness. For example, dogs

will still be allowed to roam free

on public property, which motivated Hiawassee City Councilwoman Joan Crothers to ask

Kendall: "So this is not a leash

a leash law, and surrounding counties also do not have

adopt the dangerous dog ordinance during the second readleash laws.

Kiker

ing on April 19.

Kendall answered that

The county plans to law in any shape or form?"

In spite of the steps taken ees of the transfer station.

port, and Mayor Andrea Gibby will present the homestead exemption to the Young Harris enforcing the new ordinance City Council during their next meeting

He said if the bill goes through, Towns County citizens will get to vote on the matter in November. However, even if the vote passes, the homestead exemption will not be covered in the 2009 tax digest because the vote came too late in the year. If the vote is approved, Kendall said the exemption will begin Jan. 1, 2010.

Next on the agenda, county attorney Rob Kiker read the Ordinance Adopting Salary Standards for Elected County Officials. This ordinance was adopted after a county audit recently discovered the previous Sheriff's Office, previous Probate Judge, and current Clerk of Court have been receiving salaries above the county is not ready to have state recommendations.

The new ordinance will adopt the minimum base salary, cost of living increases, and longevity increases as set forth in the Official Code of Georgia Annotated (OCGA) State Law for elected constitutional officials in Towns County.

Last on the agenda was the first reading of the Dangerous Dog and Rabies Ordinance. Towns County resident Gale Eaton, who was attacked by a number of pit bull / boxer mix bulldogs on Feb. 13, attended the meeting and spoke to the crowd.

She called her experience "terrifying" and urged the county to include heavy penalties for dog owners whose animals bite. Eaton said she has thousands of dollar's worth of doctor bills without a legal right to stand on because there was no county ordinance in place when she was attacked.

Eaton wanted to thank the people of Towns County, Hiawassee Mayor Barbara Mathis, and Kendall for their support. She said Kendall gave her his word that he would make the dangerous dog ordinance a priority, and he kept his word.

> Kiker read the lengthy Eaton ordinance, which he said was stricter than Georgia Law. The ordinance defined terms including aggressive dog, potentially dangerous dog, and dangerous dog.

In addition, the ordinance stated the requirements for possession of a dangerous dog, including proper enclosure, a warning sign, a small registration fee an insurance policy of at least $25,000, and a surety bond of at least $25,000. Eaton said liability insurance is important because the owner of the dogs that attacked her cannot afford her doctor bills.

Allison...from page 1

Towns County citizen John Case asked how much eral stimulus package, allowed us to fully fund Medwould cost the county. Kendall icaid programs. Medicaid said they would only have to provider rates will also remain pay Cheryl Shook, of the Huat the current level for this fismane Society's Mountain Shelcal year as well. ter, part time to cover it. Citizen

This budget conservatively applies federal funding to existing programs as the stimulus funds are only a onetime, short-term fix. This is why we have worked so hard over this session to pass economic recovery packages by such as the JOBS Act. Legis- stephen.allison@house.ga.gov, Georgia's economic recovery www.allison08.com.

gram. These funds, along by allowing the private sector with $200 million from the fed- to grow and create jobs. to grow and create jobs.

All Georgians are affected in some way by the state's budget. It is important for me to hear about the issues important to you. I would like to thank all of the citizens who attended the town hall meetings on Saturday March 21, 2009 and look forward to seeing you again soon. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact me at my Capitol office at (404) 656-0177, email at lation like this will speed or visit my website at timately, the resolution did not pass. Allison told the citizens been raised by the AARP of Towns County, "I could not vote to approve that resolution. as is.

Town Hall...from page 1

Allison talked about HB 143, which was proposed guarantee to the Homeowner's Tax Relief Grant this year. However, in the future, he said the grant money will only be given in years when the state has a surplus. Allison called the Relief Grant a "fine-tuned program" but 23 passed the house, which added the state is currently in a tremendous recession and sales taxes are down.

Allison said House Bill 233 has passed the House but still has to clear the Senate. HB 233 proposes a two-year freeze on property assessments in the state. Allison said if it passes, property taxes will only go up within the next two years if millage rates are increased.

Allison said House Bill 45 has his support and has passed the House. HB 45 requires any new person voting in Georgia to show proof of U.S. citizenship. Allison said a U.S. passport of birth certificate will.

Allsion said Senate Bill 83 did not pass. SB 83 proposed raising the homestead exemption across the state from $2000 to $4000. However, he added that Commissioner Kendall's proposal for a $10,000 homestead exemption for Towns County is in the House. He said if the proposal is passed, commercial properties in the county will be affected, carrying more of the tax burden

160 passed the House even mostly a second home market. though he voted against it. HB 160 is also called the 480 passed the House. HB 480 Governor's Super Speeder Bill, removes all ad valorem and where any driver caught go- sales taxes from automobiles ing over 20 mph over the purchased in Georgia starting speed limit on a state road or in 2010. Allison said the 7% going over 85 mph on the interstate will be fined $200 from 7% title fee, which comes to the the state in addition to their same amount of money. Hownormal speeding ticket. Reinstatement fees will also go up, ad valorem tax, and drivers will said Allison, in some cases from $35 to $210. up because they can't pay their among the citizens about this tickets now," said Allison, who proposal, but Allison said it added the proposal could create headaches for local govern- one except for rental car comments. Allison said larger cit- panies and people who puries have departments to take care of speeding violations, but what he called "casual sales." smaller areas rely on probate problems between local and the enforcement of this proposal. Nonetheless, Allison said he believed the bill would become law because it has the Gov. Purdue's support. Allison said Senate Bill though he voted against it. SB charging Georgia Power customers more on their monthly bills to help pay for two nuclear power plants to be built in language in the resolution. Ul- about financing the construction and said concerns had about senior citizens paying more for services that will not be available until the future.

Allison called the bill "controversial" and said he has gotten a lot of emails from citizens about the bill. He said many EMCs buy power from Georgia Power and questioned whether the EMCs' rates will go up, too.

Allison said House Bill will make texting on a cell phone while driving illegal Allison said House Bill 44 passed the House, which is an application for zerobased budgeting. Allison said most budgets going through the House now simply give the bottom line. HB 44 proposes listing every single expenditure of one quarter of the budget every four years in order for the House to find obsolete programs.

Âllison said House Bill 193 passed the House, which proposes to give local school boards more flexibility in plandriver's license will not be con- ning out the school year. He sidered adequate proof, but a said right now the state requires the schools to have 180 school days, and it costs the state $50 million a day to pay for the schooling. He said the HB 193 means a school board could lengthen a school day past 8 hours and reach the required hours of schooling within fewer days, which would save the state money.

Allison said House Bill 261 passed, which proposes a $3200 tax credit for first time homebuyers. He said it would be a good incentive to get people to buy homes, even Allison said House Bill though Towns County is

Allison said House Bill

Rogers

sales tax will be replaced with a ever, the state will eliminate the only have to pay a small amount for their tags every "We are locking people year. There were concerns should mostly benefit everychase a lot of used vehicles, Allison said House Bill judges to handle fines. He 481 and House Bill 482 passed spoke of a number of potential the House, which he called "Jobs Bills." He said first, this state governments concerning would eliminate a sales tax deposit requirement on businesses that are required to give estimates. Second, a business would receive a $2400 tax credit for each unemployed worker hired who works for the busi-31 passed the House even ness at least six months. Third, it would abolish the inventory 31 (also called the Georgia tax, said Allison, so businesses Power Financing Bill) proposes would no longer have to pay taxes for the stuff sitting on their shelves.

During questions and answers, Towns County citizen South Carolina. Allison said Darrell Barrett asked about the logic behind the bill was to House Bill 618, which would afcharge people upfront for the fect weapons carrying permits. construction rather than take Allison said it was in committee, out loans that will have to be as were many other bills because paid back later. However, he the House was focusing on said there were still questions other economic bills this year.