Hamlin leads the SprintCup battle

There's a new NASCAR Sprint Cup leader and his name is Denny Hamlin.

Hamlin won Sunday's AAA Texas 500 at Texas Motor Speedway to take the point lead away from Jimmie Johnson with just two races left.

"What a run," said Hamlin. "We didn't have a good car at the beginning of the race, but we kept working on it. The team stayed focused and we got it done."

Matt Kenseth, Mark Martin, Joey Logano, Greg Biffle, Kevin Harvick, Clint Bowyer, David Ragan, Jimmie Johnson, and Paul Menard were the remaining top-10 finishers.

Jimmie Johnson's 10th-place finish dropped him to second, 33 points behind Hamlin.

"It was a long day," said Johnson. "We gave away so many positions early in the race. It didn't work out today. We'll just try to come back next week. We're doing the best we can."

Jeff Burton got into the rear of Jeff Gordon during a caution on lap 200, knocking Gordon into the outside wall, and wrecking Burton's No. 31.

After the two drivers emerged from their cars, Gordon's temper flared and he shoved and even swung a fist at Burton, before officials were able to restrain him.

"I pulled up next to him," said Burton. "He turned left. I turned left and we just hung up, and off we went. It was my fault. I didn't mean to hit him.'

Both drivers wound up with DNF's.

"We went down into turn-3 and I went wide," said Gordon. "I guess he was frustrated the way his car was handling or something. He just drove up next to me and put me into the wall.

"Out of all the drivers out there, I never thought Jeff would do something like that."

After the incident, Gordon's entire pit crew was transferred to Johnson's No. 48, replacing that team.

Kyle Busch finished 33rd, three laps down. He was penalized a lap for giving a NASCAR official the "bird".

Carl Edwards derailed Kyle Busch's drive for a sixth straight NASCAR Nationwide Series victory at Texas Motor Speedway on Saturday.

Busch dominated early in the 205-lap race, which was extended five laps from its originally scheduled distance by a green-white-checkered finish, as he lead four times for a race-high 107 laps. But with less than 50 laps remaining, Busch's once dominant car began to tighten up around the 1.5-mile oval, opening the door for pole-sitter Edwards to take the lead on lap 155.

Busch hung tough in second, holding off a hard-charging Brad Keselowski. Joey Logano, Martin Truex, Jason Leffler, Reed Sorenson, Kevin Harvick, Paul Menard, and Steve Wallace rounded out the top-10 finishers.

Keselowski's place finish was enough to insure him the 2010 Nationwide championship.

TEXAS TRUCK RACE GOES TO BUSCH

Kyle Busch blew past Todd Bodine on a restart on Lap 127 and held off Johnny Sauter over the final 20 laps to win Friday night's Camping World Truck Series race at Texas Motor Speedway.

Bodine chose the outside lane for the final restart, but Busch cleared Bodine's No. 30 Toyota through Turns 1 and 2 and held the lead the rest Sauter came home second, followed by Matt Crafton and Bodine, the series points leader. Bodine increased his margin to 230 points over seventh-place finisher Aric Almirola with two races left in the season. Bodine can clinch his second series championship by finishing fourth or better next week at Phoenix.

we LOOK, we forget that what we live with is how we FEEL. This is where breathing, TAT, Reiki, massage, yoga, pilates, organic food, laughter, art, music, joy, friends, get togethers, prayer and worship come in. They are all part of our inner world, our feeling world.

One of the best, easiest and cheapest ways to begin to nurture our inner selves is through our breath. Right now, after you read this paragraph, put this down and let your hands rest against your abdomen. Close your eyes and take a deep breath in, letting your stomach expand as you take in air. Relax and let all your tension out as you exhale, gently. Let it all go. Again, breathe in and fill yourself with energy and light, then breathe out anxieties and tension. Do seven breaths and you WILL feel more relaxed. It takes awhile to get the hang of your abdomen expanding on the inbreath because we are mostly shallow breathers, so if you don't get it right away, that's ok. Just keep coming to the sport and why TV ratings are down last week on Sirius Satellite Radio.

QUESTION: This is what the Chase was supposed to be like (with three drivers so close this late in the season)

BRIAN FRANCE: "It is. It's supposed to, obviously, be very competitive and make it where the driver who is at his best when it really matters, which, of course, is down the stretch. That's what everybody wants to see. We're thrilled that it's turning out that way. This is going to be a telling weekend. Looking forward to kicking off the final three here in Texas this weekend.'

QUESTION: With the Chase going as well as it is, are there still discussions going on at NASCAR about further tweaks to the Chase or have those been put on the backburner now?

BRIAN FRANCE: "No, I don't think so. I think it's this time of the year when we do a lot of things in terms of looking at what is the best rules package or format in the case of the Chase or whatever it might be. We've announced a few weeks ago going to ethanol and our first biofuel, which is really important for us to keep a slow steady step in the green space and doing what's best for the environment and energy independence. When it comes to the Chase, what we want is big moments where drivers and teams have to be their very best on a given day, that's what creates the atmosphere we want and we'll be looking to make sure we have the perfect format going into

North Georgia Rapids Swim Team update

Thirteen members of the North Georgia Rapids Swim Team participated in the second annual Fall Developmental Meet held in Murphy, N.C. This competition is primarily designed for novice swimmers with limited competitive expe-

The team's young swimmers did exceptionally well, with all participants earning ribbons. Macy Davis and Glenda Holton made strong showings in the girls 8 and under age group. Alli Porten and Corina Luckenbach both just aged up to the 9-10 age group, won two and one ribbons respectively. Gracie Weldon, age 8, swam in the next higher age group and came away with four ribbons, including two firsts.

Megan Foster, Brusini and Lindsay Robertson competed in the girls 11 & 12 age group. Megan has been with the Rapids for several years but recently moved up to the next level and still walked away with three personal best time times and four ribbons. Both Ali and Lindsay did really great having just joined the team in early October. Maggie Davis, age 13, having recently taken a break from competitive swimming, got back into action by winning ribbons in each of her four events. All four male team members competed in their first swim meet. Calvin Holton, age 8, won four ribbons, three firsts and a second. Wil-

Ali liam Holton, Calvin's older brother, won two ribbons in the 9-10 age group. Nick Bradley and Evan Phillips also in the 9-10 age group won seven ribbons between them.

David Peterson concert at the Folk School November 12th

Bluegrass singer and guitarist David Peterson will be featured in a rare solo concert at the John C. Campbell Folk School in Brasstown, N.C. at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, November 12. The concert, which will be held in the Folk School's Keith House Community Room, is free and open to the public. Donations are welcome.

David Peterson is a rare combination: a savvy independent recording artist and a bluegrass singer who cherishes tradition. His voice has that lofty quality that carries from mountain-top to mountain-top. It's powerful, complete and saturated with Bill Monroe and Jimmy Martin's blues. A Boston native, he's not somebody who would have been issued a bluegrass license at birth. But Peterson learned the music from a deacon at his church and and as music writer Robert Oermann likes to say, there's nobody as zealous as a convert. When he got serious about the mandolin, the guitar and bluegrass music in 1995, he left his track from becoming a minister to pursue music.

Now Dave preaches bluegrass with a missionary zeal. He also writes songs, an important and challenging characteristic for a preserver of tradition. On his latest CD, "In The Mountaintops To Roam," you'll hear him lead an insightful tour of 1946, the year that gave birth to bluegrass.

The final Friday night concert of the year will be The Brasstown Ringers (Dec. 10). The Folk School concert schedule through March 2011 is available on the world wide web at http://www.folkschool.org. For further information call the Folk School at 828-837-2775 or 1-800-FOLK-SCH. N(nov10,Z6)CA

STAGE YOUR HOME FOR SALE

By Jeanne Mills, Realtor

repairs you shouldn't ignore of Consumer's Digest there was a helpful article, providing expert advice to stop trouble in its tracks for those selling their homes, or simply living comfortably. Don't let these problems give your home a bad inspection report.

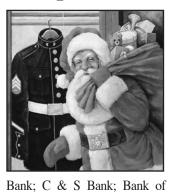

Five home

Trouble signs are easy to spot. The article provided five with the biggest red flags. The first is rainwater. If 10 things can go wrong with a house, 15 of them have to do with water, says a home inspector. Be sure gutters, downspouts, and leader pipes channel water away from the house. Soil around the foundation should slope away from the house. Roofs are the most susceptible to water problems. Check flashing around chimneys, skylights, and roof valleys for cracks, or missing shingles. A tube of caulk can save thousands of dollars in repairs where the siding meets

In the June 2009 issue need to address are mold and pest infestation. Musty odors or chronic head colds are signs of mold. You can treat small areas yourself if you're properly clothed. Termites and carpenter ants gravitate to moist soil and rotting wood. Keep mulch, firewood, and dense shrubbery away from foundations.

Foundation cracks can serious, and need to be checked. A home inspector advises using a no.2 pencil to check the depth of a crack. Shallow cracks are the result of concrete curing, but deeper ones can signal structural issues. Add attic insulation and seal around pipes, recessed lighting, and duct work in the attic to prevent drafts or losing heat. Likewise between the floors and walls, be sure to seal the joint to prevent drafts.

This is the time of year to prepare for the cold and make your home ready to sell. Stay warm and if you have a question, call me at 706-745-3500.
